GOODBYE GARY

Gary Gygax, co-creator of Dungeons & Dragons and one of the fathers of tabletop role-playing games, died on Tuesday at the age of 69. He had suffered from heart problems.

The news was first announced on the message board of Troll Lord Games, the publisher of Gygax's most recent works. It has since been directly confirmed by the company, which will post an announcement on its Web site later Tuesday.

Gygax was best known for helping create Dungeons & Dragons and Advanced Dungeons & Dragons. He also pioneered tabletop role-playing games. The first D&D rulebooks were released in 1974 by TSR, and since then have produced three full-fledged sequels, numerous revisions and updates, and dozens upon dozens of additional rulebooks, settings, and campaigns. While Gygax hadn't had much direct involvement with D&D for many years, he developed and contributed to many role-playing games, including Troll Lord Games' Gary Gygax's Fantasy Worlds.

Dungeons & Dragons continues to develop. Since TSR was purchased by Wizards of the Coast, the game has seen even more expansions and updates. The company released Dungeons & Dragons 3rd Edition in 2000, and Dungeons & Dragons 4.0 is scheduled to ship in June. Though he didn't actively produce the latest editions of the game, neither they nor the countless video games, books, and other media that carry the D&D name would have been possible without him.

GEN CON BANKRUPT?

Gen Con LLC announced Feb. 15 that it has filed for Chapter 11 protection in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the State of Washington. According to the announcement, this action "became necessary as a result of significant unforeseen expenses associated with attempts to expand its core business to encompass externally licensed events."

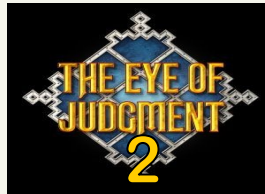

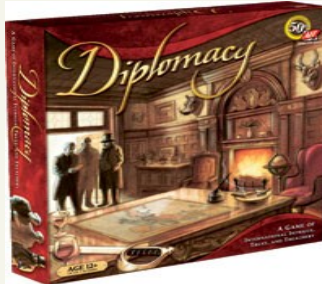

The announcement added that Gen Con's flagship show, Gen Con Indy, will take place as scheduled Aug. 14-17, in Indianapolis, Ind., and that international Gen Con events are unaffected by this situation and will continue to operate as scheduled.

"Because the fundamentals of our business are strong; and because our debt problems are challenges mostly linked to one-time events, we feel confident that the profile of our company will benefit under Chapter 11 and come out strong in the end," said Gen Con CEO Peter D. Adkison.
